

Sustainable Energy Support for Planners

With funding from the Energy Saving Trust, the Renewable Energy Action for London (REAL) project team is offering your planning authority free and impartial support with sustainable energy.

The need for planning officer support

The role of the planning officer has never been so demanding. With the publication of Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 1: Creating Sustainable Communities and PPS 22: Renewable Energy, planning officers are now expected to have knowledge of, and to engage competently with developers' consultants on, a wide range of sustainability issues.

The integration of sustainable energy through the planning process will prove extremely effective in meeting the UK's carbon reduction targets and improving the living and working environments for residents in your borough. However, planning authorities across London are asking themselves the obvious questions:

- How can we resource this additional work?
- How can we develop internal expertise?
- Where can we go for support?
- How can we ensure that local or London Plan energy policy is complied with?

Who can we go to for support?

The REAL project team has launched a planning officer support line to answer all your questions on sustainable energy:

Email:

real@cen.org.uk

Hours:

9am - 5pm Monday to Friday

What level of support is available?

REAL can provide your planning authority with the following support, ensuring that opportunities to improve sustainable energy in your borough are not missed and that key knowledge is transferred to your planning teams over time:

- Advice on development of sustainable energy policy
- Support with assessing energy proposals for new developments
- Assistance with use of London Renewables' Toolkit
- Information on performance and feasibility of renewable energy technologies
- Support for developers referred to the service in complying with local policy

To find out more about this support service or to discuss bespoke support requirements contact Carly Hardy on 020 8683 6617.

Remember!

With support from the REAL project team your borough can achieve even higher standards of energy efficiency and the inclusion of renewable energy in new developments, making a real difference to the living and working environments of your residents.
